INTRODUCTION

The primary goals of English 11 are to develop the skills required to communicate effectively in writing and to deepen an understanding of English literature through reading and analyzing poetry, short stories, non-fiction and a novel.

SELF-PACED LEARNING ENVIRONMENT

English 11 at CLOC is a self-paced, self-directed course. Students will be expected to work independently and manage their time in a productive manner. It is a good idea to create a study calendar and set at least one day a week to dedicate to the course. Ideally, students should submit at least one assignment a week in order to make progress.

PRESCRIBED LEARNING OUTCOMES

The following prescribed learning outcomes will be assessed through the specific course units:

- It is expected that students will develop repertoires of skills and strategies to use as they anticipate, predict, and confirm meaning while reading viewing and listening.
- It is expected students will demonstrate their understanding of written, oral and visual communications.
- It is expected students will identify connections between their own ideas, experiences, and knowledge and a variety of literary and mass media works.
- It is expected students will draw reasoned conclusions from information found in various written, spoken or visual communications and defend their conclusions rationally.
- It is expected students will apply their knowledge of the conventions of language and use appropriate vocabulary to talk about them.
- It is expected that students will employ a variety of effective strategies and processes including those of electronic technology to generate, gather and organize information and ideas.
- It is expected that students will enhance the precision, clarity and artistry of their communications by using processes that professional authors and presenters use.
- It is expected students will demonstrate their understanding of and abilities to use a variety of forms and styles of communication that are relevant to specific purposes and audiences.
- It is expected that students will use language to explore thoughts, ideas, feelings, and experiences to prepare for their roles in the world.
- It is expected that students will use language to explore thoughts, ideas, feelings, and experiences to prepare for their role in the world.
- It is expected that students will use language to interact and collaborate with others to explore ideas and accomplish goals.
- It is expected that students will use language to help establish and maintain relationships within the school and community to collaborate to get things done, and to value and support others.
