Birchland E-News Volume 2013 – 20

January 29, 2013

Principal of the Matter – fpearse@sd43.bc.ca

The other day I was walking by the school swing set at recess and I noticed about 40 students (grades 1-5) lined up against the fence. This struck me as a little different than our regular playground behaviour so I wandered over and asked what they were doing. Immediately, all 40 children started to tell me what they were doing. After stopping this mayhem I managed to get one student to explain it to me. Apparently they were playing Zombies vs. Humans. How do you play Zombies vs. Humans I asked? What I learned is that the Zombies try to eat the humans and when they catch them the humans turn into Zombies. And the humans try to 'shoot' the Zombies with a potion that causes them to 'die' (I thought Zombies were already dead...or maybe undead? Yeah, definitely undead). Then the Zombies crash to the ground for 30 seconds and become human again.

My immediate thoughts went to 'shoot' and 'die'. I know my wife and I have spent much time talking about what games we let our own children play. Do we let them play with fake swords? Do we let them 'shoot' each other with Buzz Lightyear's Blaster? Many of these questions have fallen under the category that they are things we would probably prefer they didn't do, but were also not the proverbial hills we wanted to 'die' on. (Although the blaster makes a hideously annoying sound, so this one does often 'go missing')

Then I looked at the group of kids, there was a mix of boys and girls from a wide range of ages playing the game. I told them that I wanted to watch them play for a few minutes. They quickly sorted themselves into teams and started to play. Kids were running everywhere (I still have no idea how they knew who was a human and who was a zombie), there were definitely humans shooting zombies with potions, and many kids lying lifeless on the ground before reemerging as humans. A large group of kids ended up standing on the edge of the swing area in a line, I am still not sure how they ended up there. But in general everyone appeared to be having fun, appeared safe, and was getting some good exercise.

As the game continued I decided that the shooting needed to go. In this day and age it doesn't seem right for kids to be running around pretending to shoot each other, even if they are pretending to be zombies. Thus the Humans now tag the zombies, and the game seems to still work. Likely the game will fade out by the end of the week, and everyone will have moved onto something new, but I would love to hear your opinion on this type of game on a school yard. I wonder about the relationship between individual family values and expectations and the general values and expectations of our larger community.

Enjoy the last week of January!

Please send your coffee orders in with you children as soon as possible. Orders are due by Jan 25th. A copy of the order form and brochure can be found here.

If you haven't already done so I would highly recommend that you 'Like' the BPAC on Facebook. The page is a great source of information about the school and the PAC and can be accessed at: <http://www.facebook.com/BirchlandPAC>

SD 43 District Meal Program

We are pleased to once again offer the services of the district's elementary school meals program to our Birchland students. Nutritious lunches, prepared at the Centennial teaching kitchen, under the direction of the teaching chef, a culinary assistant and school meal coordinators, will be delivered to our school each day. For the menu and order form, please click here.

May Day Festivities

Being the Port Coquitlam Centennial this year, and the 90th anniversary of the Port Coquitlam May Day Celebrations it will be a very special May Day Celebration this year. Students at Birchland have two ways to get involved in the festivities.

The Royal Party consists of Flower Girls from Grades 1 and 2 and Princesses and Lancers from Grades 4 and 5. Students interested are asked to apply on-line at www.portcoquitlam.ca/mayday, or submit the application form which can be found here. Please contact Shelly Alford at RoyalParty@portcoquitlam.ca if you require more information. The application deadline is Monday, February 4, 2013. Royal Party participants will be randomly selected from all interested applicants.

We will also be having our own May Pole Dance team here at Birchland, watch for information in the coming weeks.

Cold Weather Recess, Lunch and change of clothes

Looking at the extended forecast it appears that we will see the temperatures fall and maybe even some snow this coming weekend. When the weather is cold please ensure your children are dressed appropriately to be outside for up to 30 minutes when they are coming to school. Unless there is a substantial amount of ice, or large slushy puddles we will continue to be outside with the children at both recess and lunch time. Accidents do happen outside – slip or fall and a change of clothes for your child is need such as; pants, underwear, socks and shirt. We have limited supplies on hand and would appreciate if you are able to send a spare pair of clothes in a plastic bag with their name on it in the classroom.

You can discover more about a person in an hour of play, than in a year of conversation.
