

Action Plan for Learning

School Name: Citadel Middle School

School Goal: Social Emotional Learning

School Year: 2021-2022

Goal/ Inquiry Student learning	By focusing on the goal, Human Social, we commit to being intentional about building community at Citadel. Students and staff will achieve success together by taking time to understand the definition of community (the what) so that we can establish the importance of building community (the why) as we move forward with intentional actions (the how). To build capacity for social responsibility (personal and social core competency) as educated citizens who are "cooperative, principled and respectful of others regardless of differences." Students will work towards an ability and disposition to "...participate in classroom and group activities that make my classroom, school, community, or natural world a better place." (See backup documentation: Core Competencies)

Rationale 1-3 reasons for choosing goal	We want to intentionally make decisions for our school that are related to our goal of building community. Major activities chosen as a class/team/school must be in line with the APL school goal for 2019-2020. Staff believe that building community will support student and staff sense of belonging and safety. This will be important in the implementation of the Redesigned Curriculum and student success .

Quantitative:

To improve at building community connectedness among peers. For example, although the sample size is limited, it is possible to track trends over time, by looking at the only current from the Middle Years Development Index grade 7 (M DI-7) . The score on "peer belonging" was 67% in 2015-2016 versus 64% in 2016-2017 (pp. 20 and 33) . Also, note that the score on "school belonging" was 52% in 2015-2016 versus 60% in 2016-2017. The goal would be to increase student understanding and desire to feel like they belong to a social group: "When I am with others my age, I feel like I am part of the group." (See MDI7 survey result under "Backup Documentation.")

Monitor Progress and Adjust Actions - Qualitative:

Term 1: Interview students and staff- anecdotal collecting of data

Term 3: Interview students and staff; review data

Qualitative:

To improve at articulating "what community is..." and to improve at articulating an awareness, understanding and appreciation of specific facets of the Positive Personal and Cultural Identity (Personal and Social Core Competency).

ACTION PLAN for APL LEARNING TEAM

1. Build a team identity
2. Continue to order team tees
3. Student interviews: "What does community mean to you?"
4. Staff interviews: "What does community mean to you?"
5. Parent interviews: "What does community mean to you?"
5. Build calendar of events by team/class for school-wide
6. Design, implement and collate results of survey
7. Plan Professional Learning Wednesday (PLW) sessions around community building

Other considerations to initiate:

Multi-age Team Building events; Spirit Assembly (5 in the year; one per team; cooperative competition)

Once a week/month team activities; wear team tees (on Fridays)

Continue to consider inquiry questions:

How do we measure if kids feel connected to the community?

What do we as classroom teachers and staff need to do in the year?

Build on learning about staff and students' capacities

Training in Tribes, restorative practices

Release time (e.g. to create survey)

Celebration of the community with support from PAC (kick off event on Meet the Teacher night BBQ)

• How does this inform potential next steps?

teams. We found that students were better able to transition into larger groups such as whole school activities once they became a community in their classrooms. We learned from our first year, that for our second year, we needed to reduce cross-teaming and tumbling in order to allow staff and students more time together for connection. We found this strategy to be effective in helping us build community.

Our community building goal was immensely helpful and timely when COVID 19 occurred. Having multiple transitions from classroom to remote learning to hybrid learning was made easier as we had been intentionally working on building community. The shift to online learning when relationships were stronger meant we were better able to support our students academics, emotional and mental health.

The organization of lockers by school-wide alpha instead of grade/division and school-wide field trips were successful. Core teams were able build community during their team time, intramurals and spirit assemblies. Sarah Wells (Believe initiative) and Cody Deaner (came to speak on the power of focussing on the positive, supporting each other and pursuing our goals.) Our school's Project of Heart project, our 25th anniversary commemorative art was to completed in time for our May celebration but due to COVID 19, will scheduled be completed next year.

Our stretches were that commitment to the curricular/core competencies, socio-emotional learning and continuing to improve our communicating student learning practice during a pandemic with a hybrid remote learning environment made for a very busy and unprecedented year with trying to accomplish these priorities. As assessment is relational, it is important to build a community of learners. Our other stretch was how to engage non-attending students. We will continue to work on building relationships, teaching executive functioning, self-regulation, resilience, First Peoples Principles of Learning and implementing inclusive practices. We have staff who worked with Jennifer Katz (Universal Design) and Leyton Schnellert on universal design as an inclusion practice.

We needed to meet together more as a staff to articulate to reflect and be even more intentional as to how we build community. In addition, we have worked on staff community building. We also learned that we needed to meet more often to build large group community. We continue to plan ahead so activities can be scheduled, intentional and meaningful and not just fun. Staff have been willing to be flexible with schedules in order to accommodate the community building. We can also work on cross-curricular activities within teams or cross teams.

Circles have been successfully used by many staff to build emotional literacy and to develop relationships. SOGI was and will continue a focus as we work towards a more inclusive community. In our third year, we had staff members on restorative practice learning teams, staff who built capacity with students and colleagues, Lion King school musical, Random Acts of Caring Week (" these activities encourage students to be mindful of the feelings and emotions of others and to think of people other than themselves") as well as a book club on Ensouling Our Schools by Jennifer Katz.

Our staff reflected that we need to:

Connect with students you normally wouldn't so they have another safe adult in the building and life (making time!)

Practice gratitude

Teach students about "bullying" versus managing interpersonal conflicts, taking responsibility

Encourage more students to participate in school activities

Find more activities to include students.

Continue to build community amongst staff

For next year, we will continue to use one Professional Learning Wednesday per month to work our goal and monthly staff meetings will have APL for discussion and planning. Our 2019-2020 MDI data shows that socio-emotional learning to build community will continue to be our focus. optimism show as 30% high, 44% medium and 27% low. Empathy is 74% high, 25% medium and 1% as low. Prosocial behaviour 37% high, 40% medium, 23% low. Self-esteem 47% high, 33% medium, 19% low. Responsible decision-making 62% high, 33% medium, 5% low. Self-awareness 42% high, 43% medium, 15% low.

Class reviews shared:

Strengths:

- students are very friendly and kind to each other
- Very good at listening, conversations, sharing
- Good at critical thinking, self-regulation
- Love to help and be involved in creative solutions, inclusive
- Cooperative during online learning
- Strong sense of community in class and online, very eager to learn

Stretches:

- Need to grow more leaders as there are many with potential
- Being too hard on themselves

Goals:

Develop more leaders

Continue with circles and focus on SEL

We are hopeful that our SEL results will continue to improve and we will continue to work with students, parents and staff on a shared understanding of community, intentional inclusion, goal implementation and on looking at ways to collect data to inform our goal in a robust and responsive manner.
