Reflection

A new APL process and three new focus areas for lots of new staff prompted us to take our time and move slowly with our APL this year. We have progressed the furthest with our Human and Social development area as most teachers have dedicated time and lessons using the EASE program and we are committed to continuing it next year.

In terms of indigenous ways of learning we do incorporate these into regular teaching practice but we can be more deliberate in doing so and we think that we can connect with our our indigenous youth worker and the indigenous education department more to help facilitate this process.

Finally, our intellectual focus goal area of developing number sense is in its infancy. Moving forward for next year we are committed to initiating numeracy tasks with the assistance of district numeracy support staff and we are committed to having dedicated professional development time on pro d days or at staff meetings to discuss our goal area and look toward development of indicators of success.
