Emergency Release Day - next Thursday, May 14

Though we don't like to think about it happening, we need to be prepared for a major emergency – and a major emergency release – in the event of an earthquake, fire, or serious incident that necessitates picking up your children from school, without being able to come into the school.

Our Emergency Release Day is next Thursday, May 14th, where parents, caregivers, or emergency contacts will pick up their student(s) at 2:00 pm to simulate an emergency evacuation. At Alderson, our students will have evacuated the building, following a simulated earthquake, and parents or emergency contacts will collect their children from the field.

Please follow directions from staff. Parents or caregivers will pick up their children from the classroom teacher at the school field. If an emergency contact is coming to pick up your child, please ensure they have photo identification with them, and have them come to the command center table where they will be checked against our approved emergency release forms.

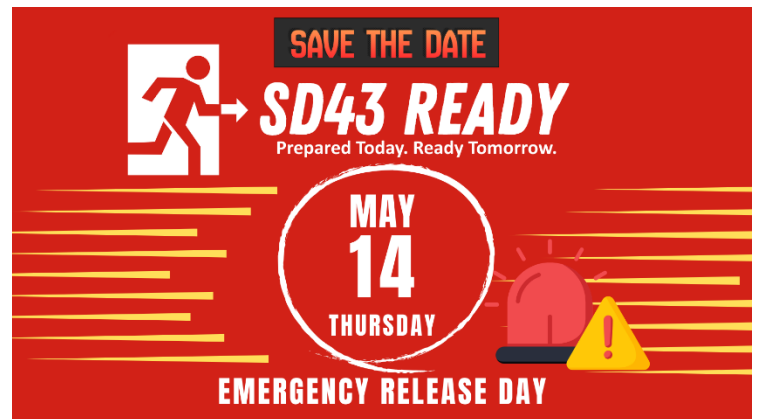

Please ensure you or your emergency contact is available for Emergency Release Day, May 14th at 2:00 pm

Class Photos - Thursday, May 14

Because having an emergency release drill isn't enough for one day (!), we are also having our class photos in the morning. Bring your smiles to school!

Warmer weather is here

The warmer weather his (finally!) arrived, or at least it did for a little while. Please remember to send your students with weather appropriate wear. We encourage hats on those warmer days, and the application of sunscreen before coming to school. And please make sure students have their water bottles with them each day.
