Library Learning Commons

In the lead up to our student vote on October 18, students will be engaging in an activity called Feed for Thought from the website CIVIX. They will choose between 2 candidates in a mock election, judging them and their platforms through social media posts. Students will learn that algorithms that are used to decide what we see online can create "filter bubbles" and this in turn can affect our democracy. For more information on what the students will be learning, you can watch the following video.
