Cactus

HWSS GardenBank: Green Carpet #8
ChaeEun Lim

A type of plant that is known for its prickly needles and their ability to live in extremely dry conditions.

FUN FACTS:

- The average lifespan of a cactus is between 10 to 200 years.
- They can survive in dry environments because they are able to store water.
- The spines/needles of the cactus act as a shade, so that the sun wouldn't be able to dry out all the moisture.

HEALTH BENEFITS:

- A cactus can absorb carbon dioxide and revert it into fresh and clean oxygen.
- They have stress-reducing properties and can potentially help with a faster recovery of sick patients.
- Also, due to the ability to reduce stress, it can bring a feeling of calmness and increase your mood.
