Self Regulation

Message from the Editor

This is my first attempt at creating our newsletter for DPAC SD43.

It has been delayed due to: the Teacher’s Strike in June and September this year; the Civic Election in November; and our own recent DPAC interim election for a New President and Vice-President.

So it is a tall order to fill. However, our DPAC has a history of excellent leadership where many good parent education workshops and information sessions have inspired many parents including myself on how to best advocate for our children as parents.

It best exemplifies why I, as a parent, would volunteer my time to be involved in PAC/DPAC/BCCPAC.

From peeking into the vault of past editions of DPAC Newsletters, I came to realize that the resources at the DPAC office are a Treasure Trove. It is full of useful information on parenting and insightful knowledge (for example, on how to understand the struggles that our children may have at school or at home). I am looking to rediscover these resources locked away in the DPAC office. We, as the DPAC executive, hope to bring forward new and exciting parent education information workshops to share with all of you in the future.

Parents are hard pressed for time; But to make time for what is important is what truly counts.
